Security issues and concerns about our families, homes, businesses and cities have influenced the way we live and conduct our businesses. The issues and concerns tend to change over time, but the need to mitigate these exposures and eliminate as many as possible does not.

Key topics will include:

- Dealing with issues related to counterterrorism and weapons of mass destruction in the public sector
- Identifying public and private responses to recent tragedies including the Oklahoma City bombing and the World Trade Center attack
- Outlining local government emergency response preparedness, planning and drills
- Highlighting how you can utilize your resources to implement an integrated emergency response plan and elevate your emergency preparedness

Please join us as we discuss the various aspects of security and emergency response strategies, and how you can ensure your organization's safety.
